Agricultural services

saif
Work. Life. Oregon.

More Oregon farmers choose SAIF than any other workers' compensation carrier in the state.

Oregon has a rich agricultural history, and, for over 100 years, SAIF has been a huge part of it—dedicated to the safety and health of all those working in the industry. We provide a variety of resources and trainings specific to agriculture that draws from our expertise, including the annual Agricultural Safety Seminars. These seminars, along with the ongoing conversation we have with agricultural owners and workers, allow us to be responsive to the issues and topics that are of the greatest concern in order to make their worksites as safe and healthy as they can be.

Why SAIF is the ag industry leader in workers' compensation

- Our claims adjusters are some of the most experienced in managing agricultural claims, and many can communicate with workers and employers who prefer to speak Spanish.
- Our return-to-work consultants understand the unique needs of the agriculture industry.
- Our safety management consultants can assist with specific agriculture safety needs.
- Our industry-specific safety and health guides are available in print, video, and online.
- Our employment risk management resources help policyholders in areas such as proper hiring practices, human resource issues, and drug and alcohol testing.
- Our trainings are statewide, but were held virtually during the pandemic. In 2025, over 1,500 agricultural workers attended our Agricultural Safety webinars, one of which was presented entirely in Spanish.

The SAIF advantage

SAIF provides workers' compensation for more than half of Oregon's agricultural employers, and we are proud of our long-standing relationships with them and with Oregon agriculture associations. Group programs and partnerships with Oregon Aglink, Oregon Association of Nurseries, and the Oregon Wheat Growers League help protect workers and encourage growth for the industry.
